Matrimony brings with it many challenges. Some couples are able to coast through these challenges, while others end up deciding to part ways. When it has become clear that your marriage can no longer be saved, then - as sad as it may be - leaving your husband is the next logical step. What's the point of living under the same roof when his very presence stresses you to no end? It's no longer a question of saving the union, but a matter of saving yourself and planning for a life of your own. A well-thought out plan involves doing things legally from the start, thus avoiding legal complications that may arise later on. This plan also calls for you to be physically, emotionally, and mentally ready to cut the husband-wife ties that you have grown accustomed to over time. Giving yourself a chance for a better future is something you have to seize and hold onto with all your might. If you're ready to move on with your life and experience the new, independent, and "free" version of yourself, then let's get started!

Here Is A Preview Of What You'll Learn...

- Understanding the Difference Between Annulment & Divorce
